Then, just as he was about to leave, Syd heard Grandad calling.

"Ah, there you are!" said Grandad.
"There's something I want you to see."

Look back at the characters in the attic and your brilliant sentences from yesterday.

Today, you are going to use your sentences to write a description of Grandad's attic. We are going to part of the story to help us start and use our description to make it more detailed.

Use your sentences with commas in a list and try and include prepositions.

Read my example to help you, look out for the different features I have used.

Syd carefully climbed up the ladder. He had never been in Grandad's attic before. The attic was dark with a small round window. In Grandad's attic there was an ancient chest, a knotted kite and a precious Greek vase. Cob webs covered the objects and blew in the breeze Syd made when he walked past. Pushed against the wall were paintings, a small table with a turtle tea pot on top and a painting easel. Dusty boxes were piled up high and a golden bird cage sat empty.
