

Wednesday Guided Reading

Task 1

Here's some additional vocabulary that can be found in the poem:

- | | |
|---|---|
| ▷ Parlour – living room | ▷ Come hither – come here, towards me |
| ▷ In vain – pointless, unsuccessful | ▷ Crest – a plume of fur or feathers |
| ▷ Weary – tired | ▷ Wily – crafty, cunning |
| ▷ Pantry – food cupboard | ▷ Aloft – in the air |
| ▷ Gauzy – thin, see-through | ▷ Hue – colour |
| ▷ Looking-glass – mirror | ▷ Held her fast – held tight, secured |
| ▷ Behold – see | ▷ Dismal – unwelcoming, gloomy |
| ▷ Bidding – saying, wishing | ▷ Heed – pay attention to, listen to |
| ▷ Subtle – not too obvious or easy to see | |

Using the vocabulary above and the vocabulary you learnt yesterday, write a short story using some of the words you have learnt.

Task 2

This poem is also a fable, because it has a lesson or moral at the end. What is the lesson at the end of the poem? How does the spider trick the fly? Why isn't flattery a good thing?

Write a paragraph in your books explaining the moral of the poem, including answers to the questions above.

The Spider and the Fly by Mary Howitt

"Will you walk into my parlour?" said the spider to the fly;
"Tis the prettiest little parlour that ever you did spy.
The way into my parlour is up a winding stair,
And I have many pretty things to show when you are there."
"O no, no," said the little fly, "to ask me is in vain,
For who goes up your winding stair can ne'er come down again."

"I'm sure you must be weary, dear, with soaring up so high;
Will you rest upon my little bed?" said the spider to the fly.
"There are pretty curtains drawn around, the sheets are fine and thin,
And if you like to rest awhile, I'll snugly tuck you in."
"O no, no," said the little fly, "for I've often heard it said,
They never, never wake again, who sleep upon your bed."

Said the cunning spider to the fly, "Dear friend, what shall I do,
To prove the warm affection I've always felt for you?"

I have within my pantry good store of all that's nice;
I'm sure you're very welcome; will you please to take a slice?"
"O no, no," said the little fly, "kind sir, that cannot be;
I've heard what's in your pantry, and I do not wish to see."

"Sweet creature!" said the spider, "You're witty and you're wise!
How handsome are your gauzy wings, how brilliant are your eyes!
I have a little looking-glass upon my parlour shelf,
If you'll step in one moment, dear, you shall behold yourself."
"I thank you, gentle sir," she said, "for what you're pleased to say,
And bidding you good-morning now, I'll call another day."

The spider turned him round about, and went into his den,
For well he knew the silly fly would soon be back again:
So he wove a subtle web, in a little corner sly,
And set his table ready to dine upon the fly.
Then he came out to his door again, and merrily did sing
"Come hither, hither, pretty fly, with the pearl and silver wing:
Your robes are green and purple; there's a crest upon your head;
Your eyes are like the diamond bright, but mine are dull as lead."

Alas, alas! how very soon this silly little fly,
Hearing his wily flattering words, came slowly flitting by.
With buzzing wings she hung aloft, then near and nearer drew
Thinking only of her brilliant eyes, and green and purple hue;
Thinking only of her crested head — poor foolish thing! At last,
Up jumped the cunning spider, and fiercely held her fast.
He dragged her up his winding stair, into his dismal den,
Within his little parlour; but she ne'er came out again!

And now, dear little children, who may this story read,
To idle, silly, flattering words, I pray you ne'er give heed;
Unto an evil counsellor close heart, and ear, and eye,
And take a lesson from this tale of the Spider and the Fly.
