Showing Possession

Apostrophes can be used to show that something belongs to someone or something. This is called possession.

When we are talking about one thing we call this singular.

For example, a boy or a bike.

When we need to say that something belongs to something singular, we put an apostrophe and then an 's' at the end of the name that it belongs to.

Showing Possession

For example

Person: The boy's bike.

Common noun: The bike's handlebars were bent in the crash.

Proper Noun: India's national flag has three horizontal stripes.

Showing Possession

If the noun is singular and ends in -s, add -'s, as in the following examples:

My boss's job disappeared due to budget cuts.

The class's average score was impressive.

Robert Burns's poetry is difficult to understand.

Charles Dickens's novels are many and varied.

Showing Possession

Traditional exceptions to this tend to be old names which end with a vowel then s:

In Sunday school, we studied Jesus' miracles and Moses' parting of the Red Sea.

Sophocles' plays portray interesting relationships.

Often it is hard to find an official agreement, and there are eternal arguments over which is correct:

St Thomas's Hospital
St Thomas' Hospital

Showing Possession

When we are talking about more than one thing we call this plural.

For example, a pack of wolves or a group of countries.

If the noun is plural and ends in –s, add only an apostrophe.

For example, the wolves' prey was a deer.

Showing Possession

If the noun is plural and does not end in -s, add -'s.

The children's play is on Friday evening.

The geese's flight in formation was amazing.

Showing Possession

Plural nouns can be spelt using a variety of different letter endings. As long as the noun ends with an 's', we still show an apostrophe of possession using an apostrophe without an 's' after it.

Here are some examples...

The ponies' diet is mostly grass.

The boys' fancy dress costumes attracted a lot of attention.

The loaves' glaze is shiny.

Two of the cascade volcanoes' summits are visible in the photo.

The houses' chimneys are all made from brick.

Points to remember:

Do not use an apostrophe in the possessive pronouns his, hers, its, whose, ours, yours, or theirs.

Do not use an apostrophe in nouns that are plural but not possessive, such as CDs, 1000s, or 1960s.

When do cats need an apostrophe?

The word 'hats' does not need an apostrophe in the above example as the letter s is only there to make the word plural.
